

An aerial photograph of a street scene. A dark grey car is parked on the asphalt pavement, partially overlapping a stone curb on the right. To the left of the car, a person wearing a blue raincoat and an orange beanie is pushing a red stroller. The pavement is scattered with fallen autumn leaves. The overall scene illustrates the danger of pavement parking for pedestrians.

Pavement parking is unsafe, unfair and illegal.

And you risk getting fined up to £100.

roadsafety.scot

Safer
Scotland
Scottish Government